

Resistance!

A Call To Action

I'm very excited and tremendously honored to serve as Call To Action's newest Executive Director.

I'm especially excited to join CTA as we begin to explore resistance. I've used Jesus' parable of the sower to reflect on the theme. All around I see resistance with roots in rocky soil: it grows and dies quickly. Or it's met with doubt and ignorance: seed sown and choked out by thorns; or ambivalence: seed sown on the path, eaten by the crows.

One of my first steps will be getting to know you, to learn what rich soil feels like to you, and more importantly find out what rooted resistance might yield. You can also reach me at zach@cta-usa.org.

It's an exciting time to be part of a spiritual movement for change. Thanks for all that you do, and I hope to see you soon!

Sincerely,

Zach Johnson
